

RURAL MATTERS

Ideas and innovations for levelling up in rural places

Cirican, the rural research by rural communities company and the Open University are pleased to present our ideas and innovation for levelling up in rural places.

Working with our partners we are showcasing and sharing ideas and issues in three key areas: coastal communities, land and environment, and food and farming.

Who should attend?

These webinars are designed to bring policy and practice to life appealing to policymakers, practitioners, councils, VCSEs and funders alike, giving you opportunities to network and explore how to take forward these ideas in your own communities.

MORE ABOUT THE SEMINAR SERIES:

WHAT TO EXPECT ON THE DAY

- Welcome from hosts
- Hear from our two key speakers
- Facilitated group discussion
- Identification of the key themes

Why these seminars?

The rural landscape is changing. Climate change, the UK Shared Prosperity Fund and a rise in staycations are some of many factors impacting rural communities. These seminars are an opportunity to explore the challenges and generate ideas.
